

What I Am

I never learned to study for a B
And now in the school of life
I'm just a small fish in a very large sea
Today I'll learn to swim comfortably
Today that's enough for me.

Today I won't look over my shoulder
I won't care that I am one year older
Today I won't compete against myself
Today I'll let myself be well.

Today I won't look side to side
I'll put blinders on as I ride
Today being good enough is all I'll try
Today I won't keep asking why.

I am what I am, I am me
I am what I am, no more, no less, just me.

Today I'll let go of expectations
Not fret over limitations
Today I'll smile at a small victory
And let a misstep pass by me. 'Cause

I am what I am, simply me
I am what I am, no more, no less, just me.

Today's the day I mend that hole
I'll tie the knot with my soul
I'm through with being my enemy
I'll just be.
